

January 22 - "Bloody Sunday" Anniversary

May 18, 1896
Khodynka tragedy,
more than 4,000
people died

May 20, 1901
shooting the workers of the Obukhov plant,
7 people killed,
600 arrested

March 24, 1903
shooting a workers'
demonstration
in Zlatoust, 69 people killed,
more than 250
wounded

April 17, 1912
"Lena execution",
270 people killed,
250 wounded

July 2, 1907
shooting a workers'
demonstration
in Grozny, 11 people killed,
23 injured

October 31, 1905
shooting a demonstration
in Minsk, 100 people killed,
about 300
wounded

Nicholas II, "The Saint Tsar"

January 22, 1905 – "Bloody Sunday" in St. Petersburg about 4,600 workers killed and wounded

June 21, 1905 – shooting workers in Lodz, more than 200 people killed, more than 2000 injured

RM.COM US.POLITSTURM.COM US.POLITSTURM.COM US.POLITSTURM.COM US.POLITSTURM.COM

Original article

2023-01-22

On the anniversary of Bloody Sunday in Russia, we recall the crimes of the last Russian monarch. Russian capitalists glorify Nicholas II as a defender of traditional values, and the Orthodox Church made him a saint for murdering workers and peasants.

Original article