

Lenin on the Position of Marxists Towards Centralism

Marxists are, of course, opposed to federation and decentralization, for the simple reason that capitalism requires for its development the largest and most centralized possible states.

Vladimir Lenin, Critical Remarks on the National Question

Original article

2025-01-16

“Marxists are, of course, opposed to federation and decentralization, for the simple reason that capitalism requires for its development the largest and most centralized possible states.”

Vladimir Lenin, Critical Remarks on the National Question

Original article