

Marx and Engels on the World Market

In history up to the present it is certainly an empirical fact that separate individuals have, with the broadening of their activity into world-historical activity, become more and more enslaved under a power alien to them, a power which has become more and more enormous and, in the last instance, turns out to be the world market.

Karl Marx
Friedrich Engels,
The German Ideology

Original article

2024-06-22

"In history up to the present it is certainly an empirical fact that separate individuals have, with the broadening of their activity into world-historical activity, become more and more enslaved under a power alien to them, a power which has become more and more enormous and, in the last instance, turns out to be the world market."

Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, The German Ideology

Original article